I learned quickly after meeting Shelley, that you don't so much get to know her as experience her! Most of what I experienced with Shelley was a friendship based on a shared sarcastic sense of humour. We had countless conversations over the phone that would last forever and be riddled with laughs. Sometimes laughing so hard we didn't even know what the other was saying, but that made us laugh harder. Shelley and I would look forward to our new season of food network star so much that we would begin talking about it a month before and probably would still be talking about it a month after it ended. It may seem a bit corny, but each week we would tune in and call each other when it was over...anyway, perhaps the biggest Bobby Flat fan I know! Shelley, my dear, you will ne greatly missed and I love you!

My sister was often as hard as nails. it's easy to say she was one of the strongest personalities in the room. But she was also generous to a fault sometimes and gave compassion and love when it was and when it wasn't due. She was so proud of her daughters and let me know how special they were to her often. I remember when i first start dating Laurie (my wife) i called Shelley to tell her about this special girl that i was really diggin. She said "Kevy don't borrow trouble. Play it nice and easy" well i think it was about a week before i ask Laurie to marry me so I'm not sure if i took her advice or not but when they met Shelley told me "you did good boy icky." We've been together for 15 years now. Shelley was always right. I miss you sissy. I know well see each other soon enough. .
