Butler Family, I am so sorry for your loss of Doran. Surprised when I read it in the paper today. I often wondered what happened to him. We were in 1st grade at Cartright School together. I was always so afraid of him, because he would always run and chase me at recess and try to kiss me when 8th grade boys prompted him. I always wanted to see him now later & scold him. Ask Eleanor if she remembers. He did teach me to make a written capital D tho I couldn't do in writing. God Bless andn so sorry.##imported-begin## Ann Zuder Grinwis##imported-end##

Upon my brother's passing a friend said to me: "It's tough to lose a loved one, but be glad they lived." In time may the sorrow you feel, be replaced by the times and memories you shared together and as a family.##imported-begin##Mary Jozsa##imported-end##

For every breath I take there is a memory and for every thought there is a story. Not a day that goes by will be empty because you filled them with happiest memories anyone could imagine. Even people who only met you "that one time" have a story to share because you thrived to be a character. I guess that is why you were and will always be "The Doran". Love you Daddy, your "Tinker Belle".##imported-begin##Belle Butler##imported-end##

Pop, You are a good Dad for me. We share so many memories, good and bad, and I will hold on to them forever. I know anything I say will result in a disagreement, but, if you find yourself standing on a wookity work bench fighting with stubborn plumbing, hanging from the pipewrench and bracing your foot on the floor joise above is just plain a bad idea. I know you'll do it your way anyway, just saying...##imported-begin##Bradley##imported-end##

I love my family and everything I know about being a Dad I learned from you. I was hoping for one more day, but with the fashion of the Doran you left with the same determination that kept you around for so long. (Which I am thankful for)Enjoy your 3 days and NO haunting until my kids get older... I already have enough problems with the monsters under the bed. Love you

I will cherish all the memories I have of my grandfather, especially the one's where he took me to the fish farm and taught me to fish, ofcourse I left the gutting and cleaning up to him, which he took so much pride in doing. I will also remember all the times my brother and I played and traveled in the little motor home that he had. I was always afraid of motorcycles, but it was my grandpa who calmed my fears and would take me for short rides on his bike. It's been atleast 20 years since then, and his bike is still the only one I've been on the back of. I will miss him deeply.##imported-begin##Abbey Touchette##imported-end##
