I didn't know Chris personally, but I did know him through facebook. He was a strong-hearted guy, one of the most real people to cross paths with and he cared eeply for his daughter, that was seen by everyone who knew him. I feel for his daughter, family and friends. May he R.I.P. as the storms play their sweet music in his memory.

Chris, there are so many things that you have helped me through since we became friends. You were there for me when most people had turned their back on me. You supported all of my decisions, we never ran out of things to talk about. You were a true bro. I wish you were still here man. I wish I could have at least said goodbye. I know you would have wanted me to be strong but I can't hold back these tears. You were such a great friend to so many people and it hurts to know you're gone. R.I.P. I'm gonna miss you, I already do. To the Schreiber family: I am so sorry for your loss. Chris was a good person all around and I know he will be missed. I know I don't know you guys that well but if you need me I'm here for you.

Chris : I never got to tell you how much I really did cherish our friendship. I was surprised when you added me as a friend on facebook, and kind of shocked when you kept me, no matter how sarcastic or delusional or clueless or offensive my posts and comments on your wall were. Those who knew him as family and close friends : I am so so sorry for this tragic loss!! I know how it feels to lose a loved one to a stupid accident in an untimely death. Now I am reminded again. We were lucky to have known him at all, remember the best of him, always.

He was bold and spirited and he stood up for what meant something to him. He was also soft n gentle and shared a few moments with me. Luci, I am sorry we didnt get a chance to meet in real life but Im still here if you want my friendship. You meant so much to your Daddy and always remember the good times with him. My deepest condolences to the family of Chris Schrieber. My thoughts and prayers are with you all, especially little Luci, who was everything to Chris. Oh, how he loved that little girl so very much, she was his world. My heart just breaks for her. I have talked to Chris for almost 2 years on facebook. During that time, I feel I have gotten to know him pretty well. He was the most honest, straight up person I have ever met. Underneath that tough exterior was a gentle, caring, and giving soul with a heart of gold. He was very wise for his years and he loved to talk about meteorology, loving everything that had to do with the weather. Chris touched the lives of all his facebook friends in one way or another. He had very interesting posts and topics for discussions. I loved his sarcastic sense of humor! I talked to him just about every day, and I just loved him. I miss him so much, and he is forever in my heart. I am grateful to have met such an incredible person. May you R.I.P. my dear friend.
