Just the loveliest lady. Our paths only crossed for extended family celebrations but each time we met she impressed me and inspired me. Bright, classy, funny and empathetic. You were all lucky to have her in your lives and she was so lucky to have been so deeply loved by all of you.

So thankful that Mary kept me updated when Aunt Annie was in the hospital earlier in the year so I could go and visit with her at the assisted living home. At that time she was so thankful for her family for taking such good care of her and she was looking forward to meeting some new people at the home and hoping to plan her 99th birthday party this June. She was such a positive, loving person-- and she was still "full of it" when Gary and I visited her at the hospital last week. When she was asked, "How are you doing?" she replied, "Well, you know where I'm at!" and then we all laughed. She never stopped talking about her kids, grandkids, and great grandkids. She was a very lucky woman--she loved and was loved! I'll miss our visits--give hugs to my mom and dad when you meet up with them.
