I wish I were not writing this. I wish more was done to celebrate and highlight your life other than doing this while you aren't here to see the admiration others had for you. I wish you knew how much I thought of you everyday during my struggles, because, I know you didn't have time for self pity. I wish Josiah was able to experience the amazing mother you were to him. I wish I were not missing you. I wish a lot of things that will never come true. Hearing your voice another time, a hug once more, seeing your smile and knowing you handled life stress with grace. I wish I were more like you, my little sister, my hero. I love you so much! -B

I have so many memories I could share, but I'm going to start with the first one. I was going to meet my husbands family. I was nervous but excited as well. We walked in the back door and through the kitchen, and into the dining room. The first people I met was Tavionn and TiyAsha in their car seats. The second was Tiyonna. Then I met Shontreese's Dad. Catherine I knew already. All of the sudden Shontreese came walking down the stairs with her big sister Chantel following right behind her. I'm pretty sure Darrick was running around outside. Treese walked straight up to me, talking non stop. I looked around and everyone had a little laugh, and told me no one understands her yet, she's 2. I tried to understand her. Finally I just said O.K. just show me. She grabbed my hand and walked me into the kitchen. She went to the fridge and tried but couldn't get it open. I said what would you like? Then she saw the cookies I brought over. She yelled and jumped and was so excited. I asked her dad if she could have one. He smiled and said yes. We went back into the dining room and she sat next me, and talked to me until we left. Every time I came around she never left my side. We had so much fun shopping, playing, eating treats, talking, laughing, and the slumber partys were Epic. She was so beautiful inside and out. She had the best smile that rarely left her face. R.I.P. my dear.
