Pat and I always said that we knew each other before we were born. Our grandparents were neighbors on Houston Avenue in the 1930's. We have been lifelong friends with many interesting times. Pat traveled to visit us in Scotland and was with us for many adventures. True friends can pick up where they left off after a last visit.

Pat and Clark were dear friends. I admired how they were so committed to each other - always in it together whatever came their way. We laughed a lot, and they shared their love and wisdom generously with me and many others. I'm glad I was able to reach Pat by phone some time after Clark died. We miss them, and wish all of the family God's blessings. Jim and Chris Rausch
