“ I was about 9, we were at open swim at the high school, it was summer, we were waiting for our mother to pick us up, (we were always waiting for our mom) and I was tiny y'all. I weighed 86 pounds when I got my DL. Some bigger kid was picking on me, I was standing by myself, and this kid pushed me... Actually pushed me. From the ground, and regaining my wits, I see a shadow of a person come from nowhere and I watched this kid fly across the school yard. It was my brother Kevin. And that's the moment I knew sometimes it's awesome to be a little brother. That's just one story. He let us open Christmas presents early, (don't tell my mom), but Keith and I had something good, really good, and Kevin was going to be in big trouble. Keith and I played with that cliffhanger racetrack for hours, (it was the only thing we wanted that year), and then we wrapped it back up, and acted really surprised on Christmas morning. My brother put me on his shoulders and walked me through the Muskegon Mall, I remember cedar point and camping, late night car rides, campfires and tenting in the back forty behind our house. Kevin didn't always make good decisions in his life, neither do I quite frankly, it's all a learning curve. I'm so happy Kevin found love. My big brother, in spite of his own stuff, always looked out for me. I love you Kevin.

“ Kevin will be greatly missed, his joy in the Lord was so evident, especially when he had his guitar in his hands. Playing with all if us at closings for a Decolores weekend. How awesome to be with Jesus, the goal of each of us who have a relationship with Him. But right now the only way to get there where Jesus is, is to die and leave here. Love hugs to all of you.

“ I had the privilege of knowing Kevin for the last several years. He had a very strong love for Terry and his family.
I was inspired by his honesty and courage in the face of adversity. Kevin had the drive to move forward in spite of the uncertainties in his life, as he courageously fought cancer twice.
He expressed his faith in his Lord and Savior to me many times. It is a real comfort to know that he is in the presence of his Lord.
Our sincere sympathy to Terry and the extended family. Don and Kay Slater

“ I met Kevin at DeColores and we became great friends. Over the years of driving truck, Kevin and I spent hours talking to each other. I gave him the nickname “KW” which was fitting because his initials are KW and he drove a Kenworth truck !!! The great thing about our friendship was that we could tell each other anything and hold each other accountable. Kevin loved his wife and family so much and over the past few years I’ve watched his faith grow so much. One of the last times I spent with him, he talked about how God had used these past months to bring family closer together and that he was so happy God did that. Rest In Peace buddy, you are in the Lords presence now and pain free. Love you brother!

“ My deepest sympathy to Kevin’s family. He was a great guy to work with, when Yellow Rose hauled for Kamminga & Roodvoets.

“ I like working with Kevin at yellow rose. He was always fun to talk to on the radio. I will miss the deep conversations that we shared on the phone but at least now he is moving the mountains in heaven peacefully. You will be missed a lot Kevin.

“ One day not long after my husband and I purchased our first house my uncles showed up with a beautiful porch swing, hand crafted and just gorgeous. When I moved, I no longer had a porch so they built me something to hang it on. I had no idea they knew that I always wanted a porch swing and they made it happen. Uncle Kevin asked me about it every time I saw him. I'll think of you every time I swing on it, just like I always have except for now it will be a little bitter sweet.

“ Kevin and I did not always agree on things. Sometimes we went toe to toe on things. He always said that he liked that I didn't have a problem giving my "opinion". One of my favorite things about Kevin was his talent with wood working. He and Terry did the table decorations for Weekend #80. They were beyond anything I could have hoped for. I have another wooden picture of Jesus from him and another wooden cross he gave me just because I said I liked it. Kevin loved his wife, kids, and grandchildren sometimes to a fault. Kevin was stubborn but we always made up. Im glad we met Kevin and Terry on that day they walked into Fellowship Church and asked for prayer. You finished the race Kevin. See you when I catch up.

“ When Kevin had his talk and got dressed up as death, he also had a chain that he wrapped around him and one guy and myself held the ends and we all walked around the church and came in from the front . As soon as Kevin went though the doors of the church I felt like electricity was going though the chain and my hands were getting shocked until we also went though the doors. and walked up to the cross and began to just cry like I have never cried before and all thanks to Kevin (and the power of Christ ) I have grown stronger in God and thank Kevin for having me holding that chain, I have grown so much more in the name of Christ. thank you Kevin and God bless you.
