“ I am sorry to hear of this great loss. My Mom was so happy and terrific as a volunteer at the Red Cross for years as a Grey Lady, that they made her the Director after she help start the Blood Bank there. It was the first one west of New York City after WWII was over. Other women in Muskegon felt the same way about this institution that worked for all. I helped by carrying blood when I was 12 and later, on the night calls to save someone who needed a transfusion at Hackley or Mercy. These women worked selflessly for everyone, usually without pay. Those were the kinds of people at the Red Cross that I saw there. My Mom's blood type was O+, the universal donor. Guess how I still know that from 60 years ago? I should think the newer nurses my age, like Marcia Jelier, are also to be forever blessed. David A. Carlson.
